

Chess

An estimated 250,000 children in the US are introduced every year through the school system to the basics of the game. Dozens of studies have concluded that chess substantially improves many learning abilities. Chess has been shown to: improve concentration, improve memory, improve self-confidence, improve patience, improve logic, and improve problem solving skills.

Dean Ippolito has been one of the foremost and recognizable chess players in the United States for over a decade. At the age of 11, he was featured in Sports Illustrated and Boys Life after winning several National Titles. By the age of 25 he had coached three of the youngest National Champions in US history. In 2006, the New Jersey Chess Federation recognized Dean as the Chess Teacher of the year due to his ability to help all students from complete beginners to highly ranked players. His wish for each of his students is to develop a life-long passion for the game.
